Project “Marco polo”

- Identification of 7 laboratory experts in hemophilia inside Venezuela.
- Working to improve the diagnosis of patients.
- Patients living far from the capital gain better service.
- Best research on our patients.

“Project Orinoco”

Young swimmers with hemophilia and other bleeding disorders are preparing to take part in an international swimming contest in Venezuela in April 2010.

- With this initiative, the Asociación Venezolana para la Hemofilia (AVH) wants to show that with proper training, medical care and a strong team spirit, people with hemophilia and other bleeding disorders can take up the same challenges as any other person.

Target

- Strong muscles protect the joints such as knees, elbows, ankles and shoulders, which risk becoming target joints for bleedings.
- Better quality of life.
- More projects in future.
